Mr Opiyo Oloya

Educator, Researcher and Published Author
Speaker, #MakerereAt100 Inaugural Twitter space

Mr Opiyo Oloya is a Ugandan-born educator and author, living in Canada, currently Western University's Associate Vice President of Equity, Diversity and Inclusion.

In 1979, he was admitted to Makerere University to pursue a degree in political science. While at Makerere, he became active in campus politics and was elected president of the Makerere University Students' Guild.

Since 2010, he has visited Somalia to work alongside peacekeepers of the African Mission in Somalia (AMISOM). His latest book, "Black Hawks Rising", chronicles AMISOM's successful war against terror.

When asked about his work, Dr Oloya always responds by saying, "I am a teacher first, with a deep love for teaching and learning. My vision is to transform the community through education for all."
